Westside Common

Metal Building Blended With Conventional Claddings To Create Inviting Mixed-Use Structure

In Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada, Westside Common fuses elements of metal building and conventional construction to create an image appropriate for both its commercial office and retail tenants.

Advance Design & Construction Ltd. of Medicine Hat, an authorized builder of pre-engineered metal building systems by Robertson Building Systems, designed the 360' long x 86' wide structure. Ground was broken for construction of the 30,120 sq. ft. building in November 2008 with completion wrapping up one year later.

The building was erected by M & R Contractor of Medicine Hat. Its exterior is finished with multi-colored stucco, stone and storefront glass. The structure is topped with a Robertson 24-gauge Galvalume-coated steel roof.

About Robertson Building Systems

Robertson Building Systems, an NCI company, is a leading supplier of engineered building systems for a wide range of building types, each designed according to the specific project needs of the client. The company's buildings are sold through a network of authorized design-build contractors, who use exclusive design and estimating software to design and price custom-tailored steel building solutions.
